How Millennials Taking Selfies is Leading to Healthier Dental Habits

A huge, and often true, stereotype of millennials is their love of selfies. Mostly this is viewed as narcissistic and annoying behavior, but it is possible that some good is coming out of our selfie addiction--millennials taking selfies is leading to healthier dental habits.

Taking selfies is like looking in a mirror and seeing all the flaws. Think about that, and the risk of those pictures being put online forever and you might already be hiding your teeth with a closed-mouth smile.

Unless you are planning to do the duck face forever, you need to make sure your smile is nice and sparkling. No amount of angles or makeup can cover up poor dental hygiene.

The fear of a bad smile motivates people to take better care in brushing and flossing their teeth. So, it looks like a selfie might do some good after all.

TRAVEL RECOMMENDATION

If you are looking for some destination inspiration, We would like to recommend two extremely romantic and fairy tale like places from the recent travel of our principal dentist Dr. Shruti Goel.

1. Giethoorn in Netherlands
2. Rothenburg in Germany

Giethoorn is a quaint village with thatched roof houses, gardens with beautiful flowers lined by canals which can only be navigated on foot or through boats. Rothenburg is preserved twelfth century medieval town.

Both the places are straight out of fairy tale. They have beautiful cozy eateries, bakeries and shops selling variety of cute little things. The pictures don't do justice to these places at all. Recommended for solo travellers, couples, family, anyone and everyone!

TOOTH DECAY

LEARN TO SPOT THE WARNING SIGNS!

TOOTH DECAY IS A GRADUAL PROCESS WHICH WORSENS OVER TIME. SPOT THE WARNING SIGNS AND SEE YOUR DENTIST EARLY TO AVOID COMPLEX AND COSTLY TREATMENT.

Winters are here! Ask for a warm blanket during your next appointment to keep yourself warm and cosy. Catch a good nap while we make your teeth sparkle!

JUST FOR LAUGHS: SENSITIVE TOOTH
