What Does Your Toothbrush Say About You?

ASK DR. SG

Q: My gums bleed everytime I brush or floss. Am I brushing too hard?-
Ankita Sabni

A: If your arm was bleeding every time you touched it would you ignore it? No you'd be in emergency room.

Bleeding gums are a strong sign of gum disease which if left untreated could develop into a more serious form called periodontitis. Research also suggests that periodontal disease, which may be the reason for your bleeding gums, is linked to conditions like heart disease, diabetes, stroke, and premature birth

If your gums bleed when you brush them , you're not brushing too hard you have gum disease! Visit your Dentist & Hygienist/ Therapist immediately for treatment
